

Why? Therefore, $f'(0) = 0$. One can follow a similar procedure for higher-order derivatives. However, to prove that $f^{(n)}(0) = 0$ for each $n \in \mathbb{N}$, mathematical induction should be invoked. See Section 1.3. □