

Crowding and light limitation affect phytoplankton competition for nitrogen

Subhorn Khonthapagdee

Abstract

We consider a chemostat model of phytoplankton competing for nitrogen taking into account effects of both intra- and interspecific crowding and the light limitation. We analyze the existence and local and global stability of single-species and coexistence equilibria using linearization and stability method of Lyapunov.