

David A. Denslow, Jr.

Biography

Interests:

Macroeconomics, Florida Economy, Regional Economics

Education:

Ph.D., 1974; M.S., Yale University, 1966; B.A., Earlham College, 1964.

Professor Denslow teaches principles of macroeconomics to a class of 1,000 students via TV replay. He has been recognized numerous times by students and his peers for his outstanding teaching. His current research analyzes spatial price indexes, comparisons of the cost of living across geographic areas ranging from counties to nations.

Professor Denslow also serves as Director of the Policy Studies Program for the Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

Author:

The Florida Price of Living Index: A Report to the Florida Legislature, Bureau of Economic and Business Research, 1996; "Opposition to NAFTA," Applied Economic Letters, with T. Fullerton, 1996; The Economy of Florida, Bureau of Economic and Business Research, University of Florida, 1990; "Supply Shocks and Interest Rates," Economic Inquiry, with M. Rush, 1989; "Sugar Production in Cuba and Northeast Brazil," Harland Publishers, 1988.

Funded Research:

Florida Price of Living Index

Honors and Fellowships:

Jack Faricy Teaching Fellow Award, Warrington College of Business Administration, 1997; Alumni Professor, University of Florida, 1989 - 91; President's Medallion in Recognition of Distinguished Service, University of Florida, 1989; Chair, Governor's Council of Economic Advisors, State of Florida, 1987 - 90; Alpha Kappa Psi "For Service as Faculty Advisor," Alpha Phi Chapter, 1985 - 86; Economics Department "Teacher of the Year" designated by the Warrington Business Administration College Council, University of Florida, 1983 - 84, 1984 - 85, 1985 - 86, 1986 - 87, 1987 - 88; Warrington College of Business "Teacher of the Year," University of Florida, 1973 - 74, 1974 - 75, 1980 - 81, 1983 - 84; Golden Key National Honor Society; Florida Blue Key Distinguished Faculty Award.